Foundation Meets To Elect

The Greenfield Community College Foundation, Inc., a citizen support group for the college, held its annual meeting last week to hear reports and elect officers.

The Foundation, which is a non-profit corporation, in its annual report to members listed liabilities and equity of $143,022.95 and showed a net income for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1971 of $6,630.52.

In addition to the building of Arch Street that it owns and rents to the Commonwealth for the use of the college, the Foundation last year acquired the Erving plant of the Millers Falls Tool Company as a gift. Foundation member Michael Skibiski reported that there were several prospective buyers for the Erving facility but that no firm offers had yet been made.

In his report as chairman of the board of directors, Howard Cadwell said that "It was recognition of the College's unfilled needs that caused a group of public spirited citizens to organize the Greenfield Community College Foundation in 1968." He listed the most important of the Foundation's achievements as the acquisition of the Arch Street facility, which houses classrooms, administrative offices, the computer center, a TV studio, and an art and photography studio, lunchroom, bookstore, and student lounge.

Cadwell also cited the acquisition of the South Building on Newell Court and the purchase of four vehicles for the College as important contributions. He noted that 25,000 feet of space was being used by the College in the Arch Street building for which no charge to the Commonwealth was being made.

Cadwell, who succeeds Benjamin Wainshal as president of the Foundation, said that future needs of the College include the continuing reliance upon the Foundation for space, the need for student financial aid, cultural

Students Elections Held

By BOB VARADY

On October 5, 1971 an election was held at GCC for the purpose of electing representatives for the Student Government. Twenty nine per cent of those eligible cast their ballots.

From a field of five candidates running for president, only two polled a significant numbers of votes. The winner, Rod Raubeson, scored an easy victory over his closest opponent, Steve Flynn. The final tally was 247 to 83.

In an interview, Raubeson said one of his first projects as president of the student government, will be to set up a retreat whereby the officers of the student government and college officials could have rap sessions in order to get to know each other on a more intimate level. Raubeson said he does not believe in the advisory system of student government, but would rather work with the administration to further the causes of students as well as the college in general. Raubeson said he would also like to set up an executive board and send invitations to other community colleges to come to Greenfield Community College to exchange ideas. Finally he would like to set up some sort of program to improve relations between the community and students.

Elected Vice President was Doug MacDougall. From a field of six candidates, MacDougall polled 177 votes to Brian McKennas' 67 votes; the other four candidates trailed far behind.

MacDougall, a recreation major, says he will work to further the aims and goals of the newly elected student president. He especially likes the idea of the retreat. He thinks getting to know the college officials on a more intimate level will greatly enhance the students' position through greater understanding of one another.

Doug thinks the students should be more involved in community affairs. He would like to organize groups, such as a search and rescue team to assist the community in time of need.

Sam Fay, a graduate of Alpeana Community College, Alpeana, Mich., was elected student representative from the nursing department. Fay was asked how he felt about representing a small department, and perhaps having to get something passed over the objection of a larger department. He replied, "We realize that we are Rhode Island and they are Texas. Fay also said there isn't much of that sort of conflict because most departments have their own needs. He would like to further the cause of nursing

Student Code Questioned

By JIM STEVENS

Due to the recent hearings, student conduct is a question in the eyes of many. Greenfield Community College presently has a very liberal policy on conduct of students. This does not mean that students are virtually free to do as they please; it does mean that there are no codified regulations regarding misconduct.

The Student Handbook states, "The College assumes that all students will abide by rules and regulations of the college." This implies that a set of regulations are, in fact, in effect. All the rules are not at the students' disposal, however, because according to Dean Robert B. Keir, there are few regulations which are written down. Each case concerning misconduct is dealt with individually and as they arise. Keir said that "the College does not want to turn into an institution where everything goes by the book."

The Student Handbook says, "College discipline is limited to student misconduct which adversely affects the college community's pursuit of its objectives." At present, Dean Keir determines what conduct affects the college.

In order to do justice to all parties, Dean Keir said that he is more than willing to consult with Student Government in order to work out a better system to handle cases of misconduct. He pointed out that the recent disciplinary cases were the first cases in school's history. Because of this, he said, mistakes were unavoidable.

After the hearings were over the disciplinary panel made recommendations to Dean Keir for future cases. It is their belief that there were

McKenna And Flynn Found Guilty Of Misuse Charges

By RON WICHOWSKI

Disciplinary hearings against three Greenfield Community College students charged with placing money outside the control of the college and misusing their student offices were concluded last month.

The three students, Ken Creighton who was president of the drama club, Steve Flynn student government treasurer and business manager of the drama club, and Brian McKenna who was student government president. The three were charged with taking receipts from the spring drama club production, Man of La Mancha, and depositing them in a local bank under the name of the college student government.

These funds, however, are subject to state audit under the laws which govern the community colleges of Massachusetts. According to these laws, the president of the college is responsible for all student activities funds and the way they are used.

Creighton, whose hearing came before Flynn's and McKenna's, defended himself and was found guilty of misusing student office and was sentenced to an official reprimand. He was also advised not to participate in student government activities for the next year. Creighton has appealed this decision to the president of the college, who has upheld the original decision. It was the president's judgment that proper attention was given this matter.

McKenna and Flynn, who were defended by Attorney Stephen Silverman of Springfield, stated the purpose of placing the money in a bank outside the control and audit of the college was to make it available for uses not approved by the college administration. During the testimony it was brought out that the money was placed in a local bank to be used for an abortion loan fund.

The use of the money was not questioned in the charges brought by the college against the students; the issue was limited to the misuse of student funds and student office. Flynn and McKenna have been notified by letter from Dean Keir, saying he has received and reviewed the report and recommendation of the Disciplinary Committee. He stated that it was his decision to allow McKenna and Flynn to complete the current semester on strict disciplinary probation. Keir also said that effective immediately they would be excluded from holding office or participating in co-curricular college activities for the remainder of the semester. They will also be dismissed from the college at the end of the current semester and required to make full restitution of the monies outstanding prior to the forwarding of grades to them or the sending of records of transfer to other colleges.

They also have the right of appeal to the President of the College.

The hearing panel was composed of two faculty members and two student members and was chaired by faculty member David Harvey. Faculty member Hartley Pfeil presented the charges for the college administration against the three students.

From The President

It seems appropriate to provide the readers of the Forum with information concerning funds available to the College for operations during the current year. In this issue we are concerned with state-appropriated funds and funds from federal sources. Most of our money does come from state appropriation. Our budget for 1971-72 was based upon an enrollment of 1,200 students; the state appropriated $1,137 per student.

In addition to these monies we received approximately $201 per student from federal sources, or a combined state and federal source of $1,338 per student for 1,200 students. Actual enrollment was 1,230 students — full-time equivalents. The table below shows the source of the funds by the program or activity for which the funds will be used.

OPERATING FUNDS 1971-72

STATE:

Regular State Appropriation	$1,298,507
Special State Appropriation
Library	$20,000
Student Financial Aid	14,000
Disadvantaged Program	32,000	66,000
Total State Funds		$1,364,507
(1,200 students @ $1,137)

FEDERAL:

Program Activities
Community Services/Adult Education	$23,400
Advising/Counseling Program	50,000
Mental Health Program	67,879
Law Enforcement	9,000
Vocational Education (71/72 est.)	45,733
Total for Programs	$ 196,012
Financial Aid for Students
National Defense Loans	4,399
Economic Opportunity Grants	13,347
Work-Study	28,400
Total for Financial Aid	$ 46,146
Total Federal Grants		242,158
(1,200 students @ $201)
Total Operating Funds — State/Federal		$1,606,665
(1,200 students @ $1,338)

In subsequent issues of the Forum, attention will be given to other aspects of our financial activities, including the College Store, Student Activity Funds, Trust Funds, etc.

It is interesting that after we approved an internal budget for this year's operation, of $1,606,665, approximately $20,000 has not already been earmarked for a specific expense. The figures in the table do not include approximately $100,000, which is an anticipated deficit; most of this is for personnel. State procedures are such that although personnel have been authorized and the state has pledged to fund these positions, we have not yet received the monies. The deficit will be made up either in a supplementary budget this fall or in a deficiency budget next spring.

Recent developments concerning our capital outlay requests are discouraging. We had requested $3,500,000 in connection with the new campus for furnishings and equipment, planning and construction of an auditorium and gymnasium and additional land. This request did not find support in the executive branch. At a later date we were able to get the Senate Ways and Means Committee to include $975,000, primarily by the efforts of Senator John Barrus. These funds were dropped when the capital outlay bill went to the Senate and House Conference Committee. We will need to request again next year approximately $3,500,000 to complete our new campus and provide land for expansion.

A great deal of work is needed to get support from the Executive branch, as well as from the Democratic and Republican leadership. As it now stands, the campus is not likely to be completed until 1975. Since it is designed for 1,500 students, enrollment pressures will require additional academic space before 1975.

Readers having questions concerning the information included here should send them to the President's office so they can be given attention in later issues of the Forum.

Letters To The Editor:

TO THE EDITOR

An Open Letter to the G.C.C. Student Body About Parking.

On several occasions recently, I have discussed the College parking situation with some of you. A few of those with whom I have talked have been very upset but, after a short time, were able to make and discuss some suggestions for improvement. A couple of them have some real merit and I would like to share them with you.

It seems a bit illogical for a student who lives within a five or ten minute walk of the College to drive his car around for twenty minutes looking for a parking space. I would suggest that those of you who live within a reasonable distance leave your cars at home and bicycle or walk to the College each day. If necessary, I am sure the College could arrange for conveniently placed bicycle racks for student use.

Another possibility is the car pool arrangement. Many of our students live at such distances that they must utilize an automobile in order to get here. However, in this age of concern for pollution of the environment, twenty students each driving themselves to the College from the same town when, by comparing class schedules, this might be cut to four or five cars in car pools, seems inconsistent. In addition, a concerted effort in this regard would reduce the traffic measurably and would tend to reduce the transportation cost for the students involved. In order to assist those who might like to make such arrangements, we will post lists of students by home town for your use in locating others who might be interested in car pooling.

I would urge you, once you have located a parking space, to leave your car there for the day and walk between buildings. None of our present facilities are more than an eight to ten minute walk from any other building. Exercise is good for both the body and the soul, try it.

Finally, I would like to remind you that the Town of Greenfield has made a parking area available to us immediately behind the Central Auto Body building on Arch Street. At no time this semester has that area been more than 30 per cent full. More use of that facility rather than circling the blocks would make sense.

If any of you have additional suggestions, I would be happy to discuss them with you. Drop in to see me.

Sincerely,
ROBERT B. KEIR
Dean of Students

New Course For Police

A special in-service training course for part-time and small town police officers will be administered by Greenfield Community College, President Lewis O. Turner has announced.

Classes will begin during the first week of November in Greenfield, Erving and Amherst. There will be six meetings—15 hours—for each class. The following courses will be offered:

Massachusetts motor vehicle law, Mondays at the Erving town hall; first aid training, Mondays at the college; report writing and note taking, Wednesdays at the college; courtroom procedure for the police officer, Mondays at Amherst Junior High School; and criminal evidence, Tuesdays at Amherst Junior High School.

The courses are being made possible through a federal action grant awarded by the Committee on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Criminal Justice of the Governor's Public Safety Committee to the Franklin County Commissioners.

The program is intended especially for the part-time and small town police officers within Franklin County and nearby towns in the area. Its aim is to promote activity and interest in practical law enforcement programs vital to all law enforcement agencies.

Dental patients ten or twenty years from now will be treated with drugs, not drills, according to the October SCIENCE DIGEST.

Shades Of Inquisition

HAVING reasoned that the pen is mightier than the sword, I have once again taken pen in hand to enter into mental combat with the Forces of Evil and Darkness. In recent weeks, our knights of the roundtable have been relentlessly purged. Many feel our ultimate judgement may indeed rest in the court of the Crimson King.

The inquisition, with its cold efficiency, has decimated our ranks. (Score: Knights-0, F.E.D.-4) In two masterful moves (we were dazzled by their speed and efficiency), the F.E.D. "censured" Sir Creighton (Heh) and banished Sir Brian and the Mighty Flynn. And a rumble, ever so faint, issued forth from the masses.

Then it came to pass that there arose from the multitude a new knight. Efficiency was his watchword and reason was his game. Sir Rauby came forth to lead and lead he did. The F.E.D. would tremble when he stormed their battlements (offices). Rauby asked no quarter and gave none. In a short time he had rallied the knights and demanded the independence of the roundtable. The F.E.D. relinquished! The roundtable was free, they could govern themselves (as long as this was done prudently and responsibly).

After this victory, the relentless crusade of Sir Rauby did not cease. He went after the bowels of the F.E.D. He dared to attack the INQUISITION. With his knights rallied 'round, he defeated a manifesto which "took issue with Dean Keir's decision to overrule and extend the recommendation of the Hearing Board" in the case of McKenna and Flynn vs. the establishment.

But, alas, in these latter days our crusade has been halted as our forces are divided. Sir Brian and Sir Steve are battling other inquisitions. (For the alleged possession of plunder not directly related to the spoils of war). But the saddest plight may well be that of Sir Rauby. His attentions are now diverted from the F.E.D. and toward a more clear and present danger. It seems he was traveling through the republic and he was found not to possess certain documents which would guarantee safe passage through this land of the free. It has also been alleged that upon his person was found minute quantities of an herb, which in ages past has been used for the manufacture of rope. (Which may explain the recent revival in the ancient art of macrame). Nevertheless this herb has been banned. "Aye, there's the rub."

Now that Sirs Rauby, Flynn and McKenna's attentions are diverted to other areas of the empire (combatting the "Blue meanies") who is left at G.C.C. to battle for truth, justice, and the... etc.?

Free Gifts

This fall—over 5 million students will receive Gift-Pax samples! Our campus will again be distributing the free student Gift-Pax kits of toilet articles as over 2,000 other colleges and universities throughout the United States have done for the past sixteen years. A good will promotion of leading U.S. manufacturers—packaged by Gift-Pax, Inc., West Hempstead, N.Y. who makes them available to us each semester.

Rap Session With Turner Gets Results

By NATALIE JOY

At a special meeting of the Student Government, Tuesday, October 19, President Turner abolished Article 8, Section 2 of the Student Government Constitution. The students' feelings about this article were negative.

The article stated, "This Constitution and all amendments shall be approved by President of the College or his designated representative."

Explaining why he had added this amendment, President Turner said that every year the Student Government feels a need to change the Constitution and that the minutes of last year's Student Government meetings were horrible. He also said that he does not believe that the Student Government should be "an arena for egotistical people". In further explanation of the article, the President said that the change-over in Student Government is so rapid that a Student Government cannot learn from its mistakes. He charged that Student Government had no worthy goals.

Rod Raubeson, President of Student Government, said that to say that we do not have any worthy goals or do not know where we are going is a low cut. The President apologized, saying that he had not yet seen the goals or objectives for this year.

In reply to a question about an Abortion Loan Fund, President Turner said that there were no procedures established for such a fund after a resolution for such a fund had been passed by last year's Student Government.

There was also a question of the profits from the vending machines accruing to the Bookstore instead of the Student Activities Fund. The President said that all vending machine profits go to the Bookstore.

He also said that Student Government should submit a budget based on its needs, not on the money in the Student Activities Fund. If more money is needed, he said, he would try to find it, that is if he were to approve of how it would be used. The president of a state community college by law controls the Student Activities Fund.

The students asked President Turner to let them manage the Student Activities Fund as long as projects were within legal limits. The President replied that he felt responsible for how the money is spent.

The President went on to comment on the idealism of youth and said that he had once voted for Norman Thomas, a socialist. With that the whole group broke into laughter.

The President said he would like to come again to a Student Government meeting and was glad to see the large turnout and interest in student affairs.

The Greenfield Town Clerk will be at the college at 11 a.m. on November 16th to register students and faculty to vote in Greenfield. This is the first time she has come to the college so let's all show up to register. If we have a good showing she will probably come back.

Drama Club Bonnie & Clyde To Present Henry IV

By JUDY GAGNON

It may have been the first or second time around that most of the estimated forty students viewed the showing of the 1967 film "Bonnie and Clyde." Whichever, the majority of them left the Downtown Campus discussing the film.

Surely the photography was admirable and the sets and costumes quite enjoyable, but it appeared the director was too ready to show-off the memorabilia of the 1930's. The automobiles were numerous, and for awhile, the camera was obsessed by them. The two villains must have switched cars five or six times.

However, blood was the star of the movie. It was flaunted in the audience's face throughout the film. One bullet wound in the arm and half the victim was covered with blood. It was interesting to note that in true Hollywood fashion Bonnie was shot in the back of the head and in the next scene shown with her arm in a sling.

What the movie failed to provide, was the full development of Bonnie and Clyde as people. All we found out about them was that they both wanted money; Bonnie loved Clyde and had an emotional hang-up about her mother. Clyde was clever and had a sex hang-up.

There weren't enough crimes shown even to make them appear very dangerous. This unfortunately ruined the director's obvious intention of creating a sympathetic audience when Bonnie & Clyde were dramatically shot to death in slow motion in the final scene.

JOB HICKS

The Drama Club is presenting Pirandello's Henry IV at the downtown campus December 2, 3, 4 & 5 at 8 p.m. The cast includes Job Hicks, Tricia Crosby, Wendy Shepard, John Haigis, Tom Beers, Richard Rice, Pete Lorraine, Pinnie Sears, Denis Knowles, and Paul LaCopa. Cyndie Grise and Michelle Sherrier are stage managers.

Student Retreat

By GARY WALKER

The first of what may be a series of student government retreats was held at the Northfield Inn on Thursday, November 4th, according to Rod Raubeson student government president. The meeting began at 9 a.m. and continued through four in the afternoon. A luncheon was furnished by the Student Government.

This meeting was an informal rap session between members of Student Government and the Administration of the College. Also invited to attend was Howard Cadwell of the Greenfield Community College Foundation, Inc.

Raubeson said the meeting was initiated to promote better communications between the Administration and Student Government.

Eternity

Flows in, flows out
I can't remember a beginning,
I can't see an end.
If there was a beginning,
When was it?
Well when I cried, when I was happy.
If an end is to come,
When will it be?
When I laugh, when I am sad.

Macramé, Jazz To Be Featured

By GARY WALKER

Student government and the student activities committee is offering a workshop this month for students and faculty members to be taught by a student.

Sandy Burke will instruct a macramé course beginning on Thursday, November 11th and continuing for three weeks. Macramé is the art of working with knots and making belts, handbags and other useful things.

Students and faculty may sign up for the course at the student activities office. A fee of one dollar is required to cover the cost of materials. The deadline to sign-up for the course is November 10th.

The student activities committee is looking for students and faculty to teach future workshops. They are especially interested in starting a guitar workshop. If you think you might be interested in teaching a workshop, rap with Brian Gilmore at the student activities office.

On November 16th at 8 p.m. in the auditorium there will be a jazz concert featuring J.P. & The Moonlighters. The concert will be presented by the performing arts committee and will feature J. P. Padgug, dean of faculty, on the clarinet and sax and Dean Kier on the drums. The other musicians are from the Greenfield area. Admission is free to all students, faculty and citizens of the community.

Recreation students in cooperation with the student government will sponsor an auto scavenger hunt for students and faculty on Friday, November 19th. Get your wheels ready for this event and watch the bulletin boards for details.

The first basketball game of the season will be on November 22nd at 8 p.m. It is a home game against Northampton College and will be held at the Greenfield High School gym.

Free student Gift-Pax will be available to the student body in the Bookstore. There are coed assortments and male oriented product assortments as well as freshman and upperclass kits.

McGovern Raps With Press

By JUDY COSTIGAN

On Saturday, October 30, Senator George McGovern gave a news conference in Boston for the college press. During the short meeting the Senator briefly answered questions on the major issues.

When asked what he thought of the recent nominees to the Supreme Court, McGovern was very vague. He told reporters that although Lewis Powell and William Rehnquist were both "very distinguished" and "good in legal matters", he himself would not have nominated them. The Senator was particularly unhappy with Mr. Rehnquist's past record. It is rumored that he was one of the men who advised the president before the Cambodian Invasion. McGovern also added that the nominees to the Supreme Court should be sounder on Civil Rights.

As the system works now, seniority in Congress is very important. The Senators with the most years in office always head committees. These same men, until they leave the Senate, will always be chairmen. Mr. McGovern is strongly opposed to this. He is in favor of the Congress seniority plan that Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania has suggested. Senator Clark's idea is to have the men with the most seniority head committees for only one term at a time. "This way, Senator McGovern contends, chairmen would be rotated every two years."

One student told the Senator that she thought he was spending too much time on the campaign trail and not enough time in the Senate. Caught off guard, McGovern replied that he had also thought about his time schedule and had to make a decision. He said he carefully weighed the two duties and decided that if he held a national office he thought he would be helping the country more and so he justified his campaign time. He assured the group, however, that when important issues come up he always returns to Washington and temporarily stops campaigning.

A hypothetical question was posed by another reporter. He wanted to know, if for some reason McGovern was no longer a contender for the presidency, what other candidate would he support? The politician answered by saying the only two men he would consider backing, Hughes and Bayh, have both dropped out of the race, so he had no choices right now. Even if he was running, McGovern "assuredly would not" back Ted Kennedy.

This comment immediately started a long line of questioning about Senator Kennedy. All Mr. McGovern commented was that the last time he spoke with Kennedy the Massachusetts Senator was definitely not going to run for the presidency. Furthermore, Ted Kennedy encouraged Senator McGovern to run, telling him it was "a good idea".

Surprisingly, there was only one question about Viet Nam. A well-known dove, Senator McGovern stated that there should be complete civilian control of the military. Congress should say where troops go and how long they will stay. The Senator emphasized that as president he would never send troops anywhere without an official declaration of war.

Flag Football Season Closes

By TOM CURRIE

The intramural flag football season at the college this fall is coming to a close, with its last regular season game having been played on November 2. There will then be playoff games, each team playing each other one more time to decide which team has won the league championship.

The games have been highly competitive and have been filled with many exciting plays. There have been a few injuries reported among the players but none too serious. The Bad News football team has completely dominated the league, winning all its regular season games by big scores, the biggest being when they crushed the Miscellaneous team 66-6. The other two teams in the league are the Recreation and Budweiser teams. The scores for all the games played are as follows.

Bad News was beating Miscellaneous 24 to 8 at halftime when it was called on account of darkness.

Steve Shaff should be given a great deal of credit since he officiated at all the games played and did an excellent job of keeping them under control. Steve would be playing for the Recreation team, but he injured his finger at work—which prevented him from playing. Steve was the person who got the flag football season started this fall at the college.

The Bad News team is heavily favored to triumph in the playoff games, but all teams have good chances to win since they all have some fine football players on their rosters. The undefeated Bad News team is made up of Dave Fuqua, Bill

Lovette, Ray Perkins, Tom Beers, Tom Currie, Mike Luipold, Denny Bourdeau, John White, Gary Jefferson, Gary Lemay, Henry Haskins and Ed Milkey. The playoff games will begin on Monday, November 8, 4 p.m., at Beacon Field.

The soccer team is having a poor season this fall, being winless in its first 12 games. But the team has had some close games and has some excellent players in George Eisen, Ed Milkey, Ray Perkins, Denis Knowles and Kriansar Anantanaswong to mention a few.

GCC Joins WMPIRG

A new Nader-type consumer protection and ecology group is being formed at the College according to Mark Majeski, a liberal arts sophomore.

Greenfield Community College will join the other colleges in Western Massachusetts which have begun to organize a chapter of the Public Interest Research Group.

WMPIRG will be a nonprofit, non-partisan organization representing the concerns of college students in Western Massachusetts and working for constructive social change benefiting all Western Massachusetts citizens.

WMPIRG will be an independent student-supported organization and will not use the name of any college or university in its publicity, advertising, or informational materials. It will hopefully be financed according to Majeski by assessing the regularly enrolled students four dollars per year. These funds will be used to employ professionals to work for and with the students.

The general areas of WMPIRG concern will include consumer protection, resource planning, occupational safety, protection of natural areas and environmental quality, racial and sexual discrimination, landlord relations, tenant relations, delivery of health care and similar matters of urgent or long-range concern to the welfare of the people of Western Mass.

Action taken by WMPIRG will consist of a coordinated effort of analysis and research; public education; active representation before legislative bodies and before administrative and regulatory agencies; and litigation to achieve the goals of this group.

Students involved in WMPIRG are: Ken Creighton, Jim Fessante, Irving Ginsburg, Tim Goodwin, Tom Goodwin, Frank Isfalla, Judi Krueger, Millie LoRusso, Wendy Shepard, Betsy Stone, James Sullivan and Gary Walker.

Its offices are located temporarily in the faculty office of Bob Malloy.

New Help For Problem Pregnancies

A group of area clergymen has announced the organization of the Clergy Consultation Service of Western Massachusetts. The service offers counsel without fee to women faced with problem pregnancies. The clergy who serve as counselors on this service are listed each week on a tape recording which can be reached by dialing a Northampton telephone number: (413) 586-3478. The recorded message gives all necessary information for making an appointment with one of the counselors on duty.

The clergymen are part of a nation-wide network of Clergy Consultation Service groups which have provided this counsel for the past four years. The program was begun by the Reverend Howard Moody, of the Judson Memorial Church in New York City, and has now grown to include 2,000 clergy in 26 states, who last year counseled with an estimated 150,000 women. The groups have been instrumental in bringing about much-needed changes in the availability of abortion services at moderate cost.

programs, and more adequate housing for students.

Although there has been nearly $7,000 in gifts to the Foundation, mostly from its membership, the greatest potential source of income, Cadwell said, is the gift of the Millers Falls Company plant in Erving.

Elected to the Foundation corporation were: Ronald Findlay, president of the First National Bank of Franklin County; Jack Brownstein, Herman B. Kramer, Dennison H. Jones, James R. Tobey, Gordon E. Murphy, H. Peck Buckley, Professor Duane Bailey of Amherst College and Attorney Andrew Seigel.

Elected to the board of directors were: Howard Cadwell, president; Morton A. Slavin, vice president; Ronald Findlay, treasurer; Herbert Erickson, assistant treasurer; Attorney Douglas O'Neil, clerk; Gerard Quadrino, assistant clerk; Benjamin Wainshal, John Nettleton, Mrs. Fay Boyden, John Callahan, and Professor Albert Lumley.

The meeting, which was held in a newly renovated classroom in the Arch Street Building, was also attended by Rod Raubeson, president of the student government, and Mike O'Bryan, who spoke, briefly on the need for more adequate student housing.

Following the meeting, coffee and refreshments were served by Mrs. Luella McLaughlin and Mrs. Martha Massey. Foundation members were given tours of the building.

procedural pitfalls in the present system.

Throughout these hearings there was a bit of irony: Brian McKenna — last year's Student Government President appointed a committee to review the misconduct procedures. Nothing ever resulted from this committee. Less than a year later, McKenna was before the disciplinary panel.

This year's Student Government has appointed a committee to study judicial procedures at the college.
